Chris Turner

Chief Executive Officer, Chiltern Vital Group · Chairman, Yorkshire Energy Park

Profile

Chris Turner is CEO of Chiltern Vital Group (CVG), a UK developer of technology-led infrastructure projects across nuclear and clean energy, AI, education and urban regeneration sectors. He has spent his career advising on and developing major energy, infrastructure and real estate projects in the UK, Europe, Africa, South America and South Asia, including work for and with the World Bank.

He currently leads two leading edge, energy and technology projects: a first mover nuclear and related green energy science and technology park at Berkeley in Gloucestershire; and the 200-acre Yorkshire Energy Park in the Humber Freeport, for which he serves as Chairman.

Chris graduated from the University of Bristol and completed his postgraduate studies at UCL. He also served as a visiting professor at George Washington University in Washington, DC.
